THE BUILDING

Welcome to Liverpool's Royal Court.

Outside, you will see a large building with a big screen with the words "Liverpool's Royal Court" and adverts for upcoming shows.

There may be people waiting outside, especially before a show. This is normal.

Here is a picture of Liverpool's Royal Court Theatre

THE THEATRE

When you arrive a member of staff will ask to scan your ticket. You may then have your bag searched as part of our security protocol, this is to make sure everyone is safe at the theatre.

This is the main entrance lobby at the theatre. There will be a light up box with a picture of the show or upcoming shows on it. From here you can access the stalls, or the stairs or lift to the circle and balcony.

To the right of the lobby there is Café 38. The Café does not service food or drink whilst the show is on. However, this is somewhere you can wait until the show begins.

THE STALLS

If your ticket is for a seat in the stalls you will turn left and you will see a host on the host desk. They will tell you the number of your table or seats. An usher will then direct you.

The stalls are laid out in a cabaret style. This means there are tables surrounded by seats and sofas instead of a standard audience seating.

The bar is at the back of the stalls, as are the toilets.

THE CIRCLE

If your ticket is for a seat in the circle you will be able to access this via the stairs or the lift. The stairs are to the right of the lobby and the lift is to the left.

You will then see the circle bar and the doors to the circle.

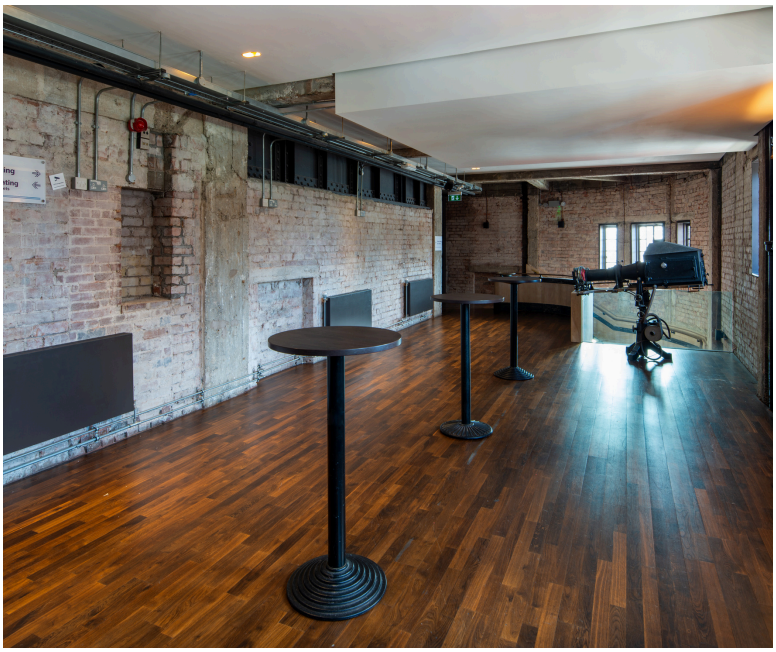

When you get to the circle bar the doors to the circle are by the bar. There will be an usher at the front who can help direct you to your seat. Your seats may be better accessible by the second floor. An usher can advise you of this. The seating in the stalls in standard theatre seating which is in rows.
